Requirements & Safe Practices for Going Back to Work in a COVID-Positive New Mexico

Over the next several weeks and months, as areas in our state stabilize from the COVID-19 pandemic and stay-at-home restrictions are lifted, organizations will begin to bring workers back into the physical workplace. The migration of a furloughed and Work From Home (WFH) workforce back to places of business will look different for every organization. The mix of returning employees will vary, and in some cases, a segment of the workforce may continue to work remotely. One thing is clear, however—the management of the process is without precedent. Many people have sought guidance throughout the reopening process.

The Governor has provided the following resources to help navigate management through their most pressing questions related to reopening the workplace.
